Healthcare Redesigned

The Alexandra Eye Surgery Centre at Alexandra Hospital offers ophthalmology (eye) services from July 2018, as part of early identification and intervention of the functional decline in the vision of our ageing population.

Led by National University Health System (NUHS)'s team of experienced eye specialists and healthcare professionals, the centre cares for patients with cataract, glaucoma, diabetic retinopathy and age related macular degeneration conditions. It strives to provide seamless and comprehensive care for the population of Singapore.

Benefits of Eye Services at Alexandra Hospital

Streamlined Patient Care

By focusing our care on stable glaucoma, cataract, diabetic retinopathy and age related macular degeneration, we envisage predictable workflows which may translate to shorter visits for patients.

One Care Team, One-Stop Care

Your care will be managed by the same team of healthcare professionals at all times ensuring that you receive a more seamless and holistic experience.

Affordable Services

Our services are available at affordable rates.

Accessible Services

Free shuttle buses will be provided between Queenstown MRT and Alexandra Hospital. We have also added additional stops in housing estates for the convenience of Queenstown, Tanglin Halt and Commonwealth residents.

Alexandra Hospital is Open

Alexandra Hospital looks after you from diagnosis, treatment, rehabilitation to discharge through five key clinical programmes.

We care for our patients through our one care team, where the one and the same care team led by a principal doctor sees the patient with multiple conditions, and cuts down on the number of appointments.

It is the first integrated hospital which provides a single continuum of care across different care settings from acute, sub-acute to rehabilitative care.

For inpatients, we offer a same-bed, one-stop care across different stages of the recovery journey, thereby offering greater convenience, saving time and hassle of inter-hospital transfers.

Our out-of-hospital care programme brings together community members from primary care to daycare and social services, helping patients to live better in the comfort of their homes in the community.
